EXPLANATORY

The purpose of this history is first, to present a brief account of the descendants of Jacob Shriver (1714-1792), and more particularly of his son Lewis Shriver (1750-1815), and second, to preserve some record of these and other Shriver families for the use of future generations.

It is an almost endless undertaking to assemble accurate and complete information on any family of long lineage. Information that is compiled but not published, often is lost to future generations. As a result, the difficulties of compilation are multiplied in succeeding years. This has led me to publish the present account even though the information on some lines of the family is incomplete.

In preparing this history, I have made use of the collections contained in the Library of Congress, the Census records in the National Archives, other historical collections, family bibles, and data furnished by living families. I have also visited numerous cemeteries and have corresponded with hundreds of families.

Many of the families contacted have furnished information which I have been unable to use directly. Since this data might be of some use to others, I have included them in an Appendix for future historians.

Wherever possible, resort has been made to primary evidence or reliable historical data.

In order to avoid further delay in publication, it has been necessary to forgo securing complete information on some recent families. This is regretted, but it is not so serious since this information is extant and obtainable.

In a preliminary publication such as this there are necessarily some errors, both formal and typographical. I shall be grateful for any additions and corrections.

I am also grateful to everyone who has furnished information and assistance, particularly on living families. I am unable to thank each individually.

It is my hope that this brochure will provide an incentive to others to go further.

INTRODUCTION

The Shriver families in United States in the present day, for the most part, are descendants from those who migrated from Germany in the early seventeen hundreds. Their ancestors spelled their name "Schreiber". However, due to the influence of the English in colonial days their name was soon anglicized to "Schriver" and "Shriver". Generally, families which have retained the spelling "Schreiber" or a close variant in spelling immigrated to United States in the eighteen or nineteen hundreds.

Although the name Shriver is not particularly common in the present day, there are Shriver families now living in more than forty states. There are only a few families living in the New England States and in the deep South. The largest number is to be found in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Colorado. More than a dozen Shriver families live in New York, Virginia, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Michigan and Idaho.

From the earliest days until the present, members of the Shriver family have played an important part in the development of the country and in local, state, and national affairs. These pioneers often were farmers, distillers, tanners, or millers.

Some of their descendants took an interest in community affairs and held public office. More recently, members of the family have been engaged in business, manufacturing, (1) transportation, or the professions.

The story of Jacob Shriver and his son, Lewis Shriver, and their descendants is representative of that of other Shriver families. It is also part and parcel of the larger story of the early Germans who sought a new way of life in the new world.

German Migrations

The early Shriver families came to the colonies with the two great migrations of Palatine Germans between 1709 and 1727 and 1727 and 1775.

It has been estimated that above twenty-five thousand Germans migrated during the first period, and seventy-five thousand during the second. These Germans came from a part of Germany known as the Palatinate, the upper Rhine River Region. Religious wars and economic tyranny were the chief motives why these people left their native land. The tales of a "land of milk and honey" which then circulated, the letters from those who had gone before, accounts of returning travelers, and the promotion schemes of shipping companies interested only in profits, were all contributing factors in the mass movement of the time.

Most of the Germans who came to America during these years settled in Eastern Pennsylvania. From there they spread onto new lands principally westward and southward. The chief port of entry for them was Philadelphia. Some entered at Annapolis, Maryland at ports in Virginia and the Carolinas. A few Germans came earlier between 1682 and 1709 settling in New York principally north of New York City in Dutchess and Ulster counties, some of whom later moved westward into the Mohawk and Schoharie Valleys.

By 1775 the German settlements had reached north to Saratoga, New York, and spread west to the frontier line which followed the mountains south to Sunbury, Pennsylvania, Cumberland, Maryland, Abingdon, Virginia, Charlotte, North Caroline, and Fort Charlotte, South Carolina.

Between 1775 and 1783, the Revolutionary war period, immigration virtually ceased. Because of the unsettled conditions after the war, emigration was almost negligible until the turn of the century. By 1800, however, the frontier moved westward beyond the Allegheny Mountains. The children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren of the German emigrants were in the forefront of this movement.

Among the first settlers in Western Pennsylvania, Western Maryland, Virginia (now West Virginia) and Eastern Ohio in the early eighteenth century were many second and third generations of the Shriver families. In their movement westward, they followed the Indian trails, the rudimentary roads through the mountain passes and others in Southern Pennsylvania and Maryland including the old National Highway. They travelled afoot, by covered wagon, or on horseback, driving their livestock and taking along their few worldly possessions, always seeking new land and new opportunities. From these settlements beyond the Allegheny Mountains later generations moved further west into Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, and elsewhere in succeeding decades.

Shriver Emigrants

The Shriver families who emigrated to the colonies prior to the Revolutionary War were quite few in number. This is evident from the first United States census taken in 1790.

German families then of eight and ten children were quite common.

By 1790 some of the first families who had<sup>in</sup> emigrated had grandchildren and great grandchildren who were counted in the census as heads of families. Notwithstanding, the census of 1790 lists a total of only 23 Shriver, 22 Schriver, and 5 Schreiber or Schreibers for all the states. They were listed as follows:

1 Shriver in North Carolina, 1 in Virginia, 8 in Maryland, and 13 in Pennsylvania; 20 Schriver in New York, and 2 Schriver, (2) 2 Schreiber, and 3 Schreiber in Pennsylvania.

(2) The names of the heads of the families listed in the first United States Census of 1790 are as follows:

John Shriver,	North Carolina,	Rowan County,	Salisbury Dist.
Adam Shriver,	Virginia,	Frederick County
Conrad Shriver,	Maryland,	Frederick County

It is manifest that the Shriver families who emigrated with the early Palatinates entered by way of the ports of Philadelphia, New York and Annapolis rather than Baltimore as is sometimes believed. Baltimore became a port of entry years later.

Although the city was laid out in 1729, it had but twenty-five inhabitants in 1752. Its growth occurred after the Germans began moving south from Pennsylvania and north from Annapolis, and after the farmers in the northern and western counties of Maryland and those of the southeastern counties of Pennsylvania found Baltimore a more accessible port for export than Philadelphia.

Shriver Families Among Earliest Settlers

The earliest German settlement in Western Maryland occurred about 1732. It was located near Creagerstown about four miles from Frederick. Those who settled there emigrated about (3) the same year entering at Annapolis. Other Germans moved southwestward from York and Adams Counties in Pennsylvania and joined them shortly afterwards.

The earliest settlement in Adams County, Pennsylvania (then a part of York County) was made by Andrew Shriver in 1734. This was near Christ Reformed Church, two miles east (4) of Littlestown.

- (3) The cemetery of St. Johns Reformed Church in Creagerstown contains grave stones of Frederick W. Shriver, born February 8, 1774, died February 27, 1820; Philip Shriver, born February 8, 1780, died October 18, 1848. See im passim, Scharf, John Thomas, History of Western Maryland Being a History of Frederick, Montgomery, Carroll, Washington, Allegheny and Garret Counties From The Earliest Period to The Present Day, Biographical Sketches of Their Representative Men. (1882); Shulz, German Settlements in United States. Three ships brought emigrants to Annapolis, Maryland in 1754, 1755 and 1756. The "Friendship" arrived on January 16, 1755 carrying 450 Palatine passengers.
- (4) History of Cumberland and Adams Counties, Pennsylvania. Warner, Beers and Co. Chicago (1886); Brumback, John Clark, History of Christ Reformed Church 1746-1947. (1947).

Andrew Shriver's father, bearing the same name, was a native of Alstenborn in the Electorate of Palatine, Germany, and emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1721 landing in Philadelphia. He made his home in the neighborhood of Cashehoppen, near the Trappe on the Schuylkill River. The younger Andrew, a tanner by trade moved to near Littlestown when about twenty-two years of age.

Two grandsons of the younger Andrew Shriver, and sons of David Shriver, namely, Andrew and David Shriver settled about eight miles southward on Pipe Creek on the road leading from Baltimore to Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. There, at what is now Union Mills, Maryland, they built a home in 1797 and operated a tannery and grist mill. This old homestead, occupied continuously by members of the Shriver family for a century and a half, is one of Maryland's historic homes and is now open to the public.

---

(5) This quaint home also served at times as a stage-coach tavern, and early post-office, a school, a magistrate's office, and a political headquarters. Among its sojourners were Washington Irving, Audobon and others. In 1863 General Meade planned to meet General Lee's Army there in the Pipe Creek Valley rather than at Gettysburg. Part of Meade's Army was quartered nearby and his staff was entertained by the Shriver family on the night before the battle. For an account of this landmark and its place in American history see, The Maryland Historical Society Magazine, December 1957.

I* JACOB SHRIVER (1714-1792)

There is a century old tradition that three Shriver brothers emigrated to the colonies in the early seventeen hundreds, that one entered at Annapolis and the other two at Philadelphia. This in part at least is substantiated by history.

Jacob Shriver emigrated about 1733 and made his home in Anne Arundel County, Maryland. Little is known of his life thereafter.

The testamentary records, Hall of Records, Annapolis, Maryland, disclose that one Cornelius Shriver as administrator made a final accounting and distribution of his father's estate in Anne Arundel County on March 19, 1796 to the following heirs:

Frederick Shriver
Lawrence Shriver
Lewis Shriver
Samuel Sanders (intermarried with Christina Shriver)
Jacob Miller (intermarried with Elizabeth Shriver)
Henry Shriver
William Sibellons
William Cromwell, and Cornelius Shriver

His sons Frederick and Henry settled in Frederick County and another of his sons, Lewis, as we shall see later, moved a little farther north into York (now Adams) County, Pennsylvania.

The first son of Jacob Shriver, namely, Frederick W. Shriver was born February 8 1744. He married Elizabeth Seesman in July 1794. He died February 27, 1820, and is buried in the St. John's Reformed Church Cemetery at Creagerstown, Carroll County, Maryland.

Lawrence Shriver (no information)

Lewis Shriver (see later)

Henry Shriver, the fourth son of Jacob Shriver married Barbara Welfley, March 19, 1779, and lived in Frederick County, Maryland.

Cornelius Shriver, the fifth son of Jacob Shriver married Anne Collins of Anne Arundel County April 5, 1806. He died April 15, 1808 (Maryland Records, Colonial Revolutionary, County and Church --- Brumbaugh, Gaius Marcus, Vol. II, p. 470).

Although it is likely that Frederick, Lawrence, Henry and Cornelius left descendants, no information has been collected on them. They would provide a fruitful source for investigation.

II LEWIS SHRIVER (1750-1815)

Lewis Shriver was born in 1750 and died in Adams County, Pennsylvania on July 11, 1815. (See, gravestone, Lutheran Cemetery, Emmitsburg, Maryland). He married Mary (Maria) Sheets who died in August 1849. By this marriage there were twelve children, namely:

- *Jacob Shriver
- Elizabeth Shriver
- Barbara Shriver
- Frederick William Shriver
- Mary Shriver
- Susanna Shriver
- George Lewis Shriver
- Catharine Shriver
- Anna Shriver
- Christian Shriver
- Sarah Shriver, and
- Rachel Shriver

Lewis Shriver lived in Cumberland Township, Adams County, Pennsylvania, about three miles north of the Maryland-Pennsylvania boundary, near Marsh Creek and the Emmitsburg-Gettysburg Road. Just when he moved there is not definitely known but it is possible that he settled there shortly after the Revolutionary War. He is listed as a taxpayer in the Township in 1799 and he helped organize the Lutheran Church in Emmitsburg, Maryland in 1797. He is listed as the only Lewis Shriver in York County (of which Adams was then a part) in the 1790 Census. His eldest son Jacob is listed in the 1850 United States Census Records of Butler Township, Columbiana County, Ohio, as having been born in Pennsylvania in 1779.

The Lewis Shriver homestead near Marsh Creek originally consisted of a stately two story stone house, barn, and other buildings. There is also a one story attachment to the house with a large fireplace which apparently was built before the larger structure. Only the house remains today.

*Jacob Shriver moved to Columbiana County, Ohio in 1808 and left descendants, some of whom are referred to hereafter. Frederick William Shriver also moved to Ohio and lived near Tiffin. It is unknown where Christian Shriver (not to be confused with Christian K. Shriver 1818-1893 and a son of Christian's brother George Lewis Shriver) lived or is buried. No information has been compiled on the descendants of Frederick William Shriver, and Christian Shriver. The descendants of George Lewis Shriver are listed in subsequent pages.

It was partly renovated in recent years and is one of the oldest landmarks in Adams County. A picture of it before renovation is contained in P. J. Shriver's, History of the Shriver Family (1926).

Lewis Shriver, his daughters Sarah, and Rachel, his son George Lewis Shriver and many of his descendants are buried in the Lutheran Church Cemetery at Emmitsburg, Maryland. Others are buried in the Lutheran Cemetery near Barlow, Pennsylvania. Lewis' wife Mary remarried to Peter Weikert after his death in 1815 and is buried elsewhere. The contingency of her remarrying was provided for in Lewis' will. (See, Last Will of Lewis Shriver, in Appendix).

It should be observed here that the History of the Shriver Family, by P. J. Shriver contains rather accurate information on the descendants of Lewis' son, George Lewis Shriver since it is based on family bibles, gravestones, and family contacts. P. J.'s account concerning Lewis Shriver, however, is apparently based on tradition and is only partly true. He states that Lewis Shriver was one of three brothers who came to America landing in Baltimore about 1790, that one brother settled near Tiffin, Ohio, leaving a large family, that another settled near Annapolis, the third, Lewis settled in Cumberland Township, Adams County, Pennsylvania, and died on July 11, 1815, and that he could find a record of only one son George Lewis Shriver.

The fact is that Lewis Shriver came from near Annapolis, settled in Adams County, Pennsylvania, before 1790, and that except for his widow, two daughters, and son George Lewis Shriver, the remainder of his family moved west, his eldest son Jacob settling in Butler Township, Columbiana County, Ohio.

According to the Department of Interior Tract Records (p.1218), Ohio River Survey, Lewis Shriver had purchased 640 acres of land in Butler Township, Columbiana County, Ohio (Range 4, Twp 16, section 20) for $1,280 on May 19, 1804. He apparently later sold part of this land, but still owned 159 acres of it when he made his will shortly before his death in 1815.

After the death of his widow, Mary Shriver in August 1849, his son George Lewis Shriver made application to the State of Maryland for a pension by reason of the service of his father Lewis Shriver in the Revolutionary War. This is evidenced, among other things, by a retainer given by George Lewis Shriver to an attorney in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, one David McConaughy, Esquire, who was admitted to practice law in Adams County in 1845. This retainer is set forth below.

(In this connection, Mrs. Ola L. Shriver of Salem, Ohio in a letter to the writer dated March 10, 1958 stated that her husband fell heir to a Revolutionary musket with power horn and ramrod inherited through Jacob Shriver the eldest son of George Lewis Shriver)

Jacob Shriver the first son of Lewis Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania, August 30, 1779 and died in Columbiana County, Ohio, March 29, 1851. He married Mary Latchaw. By this marriage there were, so far as known, nine children:

Mary Shriver b. January 5, 1808 - d. November 5, 1879
Anna Shriver b. May 25, 1809
George Lewis Shriver b. December 27, 1810 - d. May 7, 1891.
John William Shriver b. February 1813 - d. May 28, 1872
Lydia Shriver b. 1815

Leah Shriver b. July 19, 1819 - d. November 19, 1864
Elijah Jacob Shriver b. 1821 - d. 1837
Lucy Shriver b. 1825

Jacob Shriver and his sons George Lewis and John lived in Butler Township, Columbiana County, Ohio in 1850. Jacob and his wife Mary, their daughters Mary and Leah and son John William are buried in a Lutheran Cemetery near North Georgetown, Ohio. George Shriver's known children were three sons, Jacob, Joseph W., and Isaiah, and two daughters Ann and Lucy. John Shriver's known children were two sons Elijah and Leanden, and two daughters Marilla and Ellen.

(Note: Although there are descendants of Jacob Shriver now living in Ohio, the writer has insufficient information to bring this line up to date).

Elizabeth Shriver, the first daughter of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania. She married Benjamin Rondsong (Rautzhan).

Barbara Shriver the second daughter of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania. She married John Glass, and lived in Butler Township, Columbiana County, Ohio, after moving there about 1808.

Frederick William Shriver, the second son of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania. He also moved to Ohio about 1808 and lived in Columbiana and Seneca Counties. (Have no information as to his descendants).

Mary Shriver the third daughter of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania, in August 17, 1787 and died November 24, 1854. (See, Ruthrauff Family History, DAR Library, York County Historical Society, York, Pennsylvania; Will of Lewis Shriver in Appendix). She married Rev. John Ruthrauff in 1810 and they lived for a time in Franklin County, Pennsylvania and later near Canton, Ohio.

Susanna Shriver the fourth daughter of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania and married Jacob Myers. After his death she moved to Ohio.

George Lewis Shriver the third son of Lewis and Mary Sheets was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania December 20, 1791 and died August 18, 1852. (See, Gravestone Lutheran Cemetery, Emmitsburg, Md.) As will be shown later he married twice, first to Sarah Krize and a second time to Mrs. Mary Fisher Rife.

Catharine Shriver the fifth daughter of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania and married John Bair.

Anna Shriver the sixth daughter of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania and married George Hippee and lived in Canton, Ohio.

Christian Shriver the fourth son of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania (It is quite likely that he moved to Ohio or elsewhere, but no information concerning him or his descendants has been collected).

Sarah Shriver the seventh daughter of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania. She married Jacob Weikert and moved to Columbiana County, Ohio.

Rachel Shriver, the eighth daughter of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania, January 12, 1803, and died February 4, 1879. She married Henry Heagy December 5, 1821. (See, Marriage notice, Gettysburg Star and Sentinel, December 5, 1821; Gravestone Lutheran Cemetery, Emmitsburg, Md.)

Note: No further information has been compiled on the descendants of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver, except in respect to their son George Lewis Shriver, who will be considered in the following pages.

III. GEORGE LEWIS SHRIVER (1791-1852)

George Lewis Shriver, the third son of Lewis and Mary Sheets Shriver was born in Adams County, Pennsylvania, December 25, 1791 and died August 18, 1852. He married Sarah Krise who was born near Creagerstown, Maryland, May 5, 1799 and died January 26, 1822 when 22 years of age. By this marriage there were two children:

Christian Krise Shriver, and
Lewis P. Shriver

After the death of his first wife George Lewis Shriver married a second time to Mrs. Mary Fisher Rife who was born September 4, 1797 and died July 7, 1878. By this marriage there were three children.

George W. Shriver
Maria C. Shriver, and
Isaac T. Shriver

George Lewis Shriver acquired his father's farm near Marsh Creek and the Emmitsburg-Gettysburg Road where he reared his family. He is buried in the Lutheran Cemetery at Emmitsburg. P. J. Shriver states that George Lewis Shriver belonged to the first confirmation class of the Lutheran Church at Emmitsburg, a church which his father had helped to found and erect.

IV. CHRISTIAN KRISE SHRIVER

Christian Krise Shriver, the first son of George Lewis Shriver and Sarah Krise Shriver was born in Cumberland Township, Adams County, Pennsylvania, September 18, 1818 and died June 25, 1893. On February 6, 1840 he married Alice Jane Fisher, who was born near Harney, Maryland, June 10, 1819. She died December 21, 1887. P. J. Shriver states that Alice Jane Fisher was "a granddaughter of Thomas and Catherine (Warner) Fisher, Huguenots from Alsace-Lorraine, France."

Christian Krise Shriver was a farmer and at times a dealer in livestock. He acquired a farm formerly owned by Andrew Walker located south of the Ridge near Barlow, a mile or two from where his father lived. On this farm he built a stone house in 1861 which has been modernized in recent years.

P. J. Shriver states that Christian Krise Shriver was very much interested in the Mt. Joy Lutheran Church, located near Barlow on the Gettysburg-Taneytown Road; that he was a member of the building committee and helped to haul the brick to erect the church from Wrightsville, Pennsylvania; that he took an active part in the erection of the church in 1852; that he and his wife were charter members of the church; and that most of their children were baptized and confirmed in this congregation. P. J. Shriver also states that Christian Krise Shriver died of a heart condition and that his wife Alice died of blood poison in her hand which resulted from a window falling on it.

By the marriage of Christian Krise Shriver and Alice Jane Fisher there were thirteen children:

- *John William Shriver
- Lewis Peter Shriver
- Henry Jefferson Shriver
- *Sarah Jane Shriver
- Jacob Cornelius Shriver
- George Isaach Shriver
- David Ramanes Shriver
- *Christian Fisher Shriver
- *Angeline Shriver
- Solomon Sentman Shriver
- Robert Calren Shriver
- *Benjamin Albert Shriver, and
- Daniel Edward Shriver

*The children John, Christian, and Angeline died in infancy; Sarah died at the age of 14 and Benjamin at the age of 13. These children are buried with their father and mother, Christian Krise Shriver and Alice Jane Fisher Shriver in the Mt. Joy Lutheran Cemetery near Barlow.

In his History of the Shriver Family (1926), P. J. Shriver provides a brief account of the activity of his grandparents, (Christian K. Shriver and his wife Alice) and their family at the time of the Battle of Gettysburg, July 1, 2, 3, 1863. This account as rewritten is as follows:

Christian K. Shriver's farm, referred to above, was located between the Taneytown and the Emmitsburg Roads near Barlow and about two or three miles west of Big Round Top on the extreme left of the Union Army line on the third day's battle. It was by means of these two roads that several corps of the Union Army reached Gettysburg at the time of the battle.

On the evening of June 30, 1863, General Reynolds gave a pass with an attached note to Jacob Shriver then aged 16 and told him to deliver it to his mother and father. The note contained a request for breakfast and provisions for the General and his staff for the following morning. The note having been delivered by the lad, a breakfast consisting of meat, eggs, potatoes, and bread was delivered early the next morning to the Commons near the Emmitsburg Road about a mile from Moritz's Tavern where General Reynolds and his staff were encamped. Mrs. Christian Shriver helped prepare the breakfast.

After breakfast General Reynolds offered Mrs. Shriver $5.00 in payment for her work and food. She declined to accept since the food represented staples normally produced in abundance on a farm. General Reynolds, however, being appreciative of her effort and thoughtfulness insisted, stating, "Take it, for I may not live to come back this way and reimburse you for your great kindness."

Shortly after breakfast, word was apparently received of the approach of the Confederate forces north of Gettysburg. Thereupon, as P. J. states, "There was a great stir in the camp and the tents were taken down at once." General Reynolds' troops marched on to Gettysburg, many to be lost on the first day's battle north of the town and on the two days thereafter. It was later learned by Mr. and Mrs. Shriver that General Reynolds, who was senior in command of the Union forces until General Meade would arrive, was shot and killed by Confederate sharp shooters near the Chambersburg Road north of Gettysburg on the morning of July 1st.

Mrs. Shriver accordingly had the honor of preparing and serving General Reynolds his last meal.

Christian Krise Shriver and his wife Alice helped feed and care for the Union soldiers all during the battle. Mrs. Shriver's bake oven did not cool off for three days; she baked bread continuously during the battle. Troops moved to and from the front and maneuvered over the farm and neighboring farms. At night and particularly after the second and third day's fighting Christian Shriver's house was filled with wounded soldiers. He and his wife provided assistance in cases of emergency. They were particularly solicitous because they had two sons in the Union Army: Lewis Peter Shriver and Henry Jefferson Shriver.

So far as known, he participated in no battles. After returning from the Army he engaged in farming near Emmitsburg, Maryland. He and his wife are buried in the Mt. Wolf at Manoa, Pennsylvania.

P. J.'s account also contains the following recollection of his father as a lad during the Battle of Gettysburg:

"He and his brother, George I. were too young to join the service, so they decided to be eye witnesses of the Battle of Gettysburg. They climbed a tree that was situated on the top of a large hill, where they had an excellent view of the battlegrounds. While they were watching the fighting, they were wishing they were only old enough to be down there helping their brothers, Lewis P. and Henry J., to fight for their country.

"They felt the excitement and thrill of the event they were witnessing, but were suddenly brought to their senses by several shots whizzing through the leaves of the very tree they were hiding in. They were immediately aware of the danger they were in, so they started to climb down out of the tree. Just then an officer was passing by and, on spying the boys, he shouted, 'You boys get down out of that tree and run home as fast as your legs will carry you.' By this time the boys were so frightened that they didn't need to be told the second time to hurry."

NOTE: I am indebted to Mrs. Ola L. Shriver, 281 E. 7th Street, Salem, Ohio, for the account which appears below captioned, "History of the Shriver Family". It was sent to me in 1958 and appears to have been prepared in 1917. In transmitting the account, Mrs. Shriver stated that it was "given to me by an Aunt about thirty years ago just before she died."

It should be observed that this account is brief and traditional. Although it contains a few statements which are erroneous or like the P. J. account may be partly apocryphal, it is quite clear that the ancestors referred to are the same.

Mrs. Ola L. Shriver traces her family thus:

Jacob Shriver, b. Aug. 30, 1779 - d. March 29, 1851

History of The Shriver Family

"The first Shriver of whom we have any knowledge, came to Maryland from Germany. He settled on the bay opposite Baltimore. He had several children whose names were, Louis (our Ancestor) then five years of age, Henry, Kate, Sarah and Lawrence.

Louis (our Ancestor) was born in Beirach, Germany in 1750 and died July 11, 1815. He married Mary Sheets. They had twelve children, eight girls and four boys. Their names were Jacob, Barbara, Elizabeth, George, Susan, Frederick, Christian, Mary, Catherine, Anna, Sarah and Rachel.

Barbara married John Glass and settled in Butler Township, Columbiana Co., Ohio. Jacob married Mary Latshaw of Baltimore, Md., and settled in Columbiana Co., Ohio about 1807.

Elizabeth married Benjamin Routzhau. They lived in Middleton Valley, Frederick Co., Maryland.

The name was originally Shreiber but after a few years the family adopted the anglicized form of Shriver.

Louis Shriver's brother Henry went to Tennessee or Kentucky and there changed his name to its English translation - Clerk. He wrote to Louis signing his name Henry Clerk. This made Louis very angry and he replied that he had a brother Henry Shreiber but no brother Henry Clerk. From that time on the family never heard from Henry.

APPENDIX VI

The Shriver Family and Union Mills

J. Thomas Scharf's, History of Western Maryland (1882) Vol. II, page 864-866 contains an interesting account of the Shriver family of Union Mills, Maryland. Andrew and David Shriver, were sons of David Shriver Sr., who was a son of Andrew Shriver who was the first settler in Adams County, Pennsylvania in 1734. B. F. Shriver who for many years operated a mill and canning factory was a descendant of this line. The following is an excerpt from Scharf's account:

Andrew Shriver, son of David and Rebecca (Ferree) Shriver, was born on Little Pipe Creek (Westminister District), Nov. 7, 1762, and was the eldest of nine children. His parents were among the first settlers in this section of country. He was married Dec. 31, 1786, to Miss Elizabeth Shultz, daughter of John Shultz, at his house in Baltimore, by Rev. William Otterbein, a distinguished clergyman of that day. His wife was born Aug. 15, 1767, and died Sept. 27, 1839. Their children were John Shultz, born March 1, 1788; Thomas, born Sept. 2, 1789; Rebecca, born Dec. 29, 1790; Matilda, born Oct. 3, 1792; James, born at Littlestown, Pa., April 4, 1794; William, born at same place, Dec. 23, 1796, and died June 11, 1879; Elizabeth, born at Union Mills, March 14, 1799; and Andrew Keyser, born at the same place, March 25, 1802; Ann Maria, born March 13, 1804; Joseph, born Jan. 11, 1806; and Catharine, born May 27, 1808....

On June 26th of that year (1797) he removed with his family, then comprising six children, to the Union Mills property, which he bought, in partnership with his brother David,...

The children of Andrew and Elizabeth Shriver were married thus: John Shultz to Henrietta Myers, of Baltimore; Thomas, three times,--first, to Ann Sharp, of York, Pa., and the third time to Miss Sherard; Rebecca Ferree to James Renshaw, of York, Pa.; Matilda to Michael H. Spangler, of York, Pa.; James to Elizabeth B. Miller, of Uniontown, Pa.; William to Mary Owings, of Littlestown, Pa.; Elizabeth (Eliza) to Lawrence J. Brengle, of Frederick (after the decease of Catharine Shriver, his first wife); Andrew Keyser, on Feb. 16, 1837, to Catharine Wirt, of Hanover, Pa. (who died Aug. 24, 1873); Anna Maria to William Tell Steiger, of Washington, D. C.; Joseph to Lawrence J. Brengle, of Frederick.

William Shriver was born at Littlestown, Pa., Dec. 23, 1796, and at the time of his death, which occurred in 1879, was one of the proprietors of the flour-mills, and of the old estate there, which had been in the family many years. He was a brother to the late John S. Shriver, so well known as the president of the Ericsson line of steamboats between Baltimore and Philadelphia. He had several brothers, one of them, Thomas Shriver, living in New York City, ninety years old. Mr. Shriver's father was a very old man when he died, and the family is generally long-lived. He left an aged wife and a large number of children and great-grandchildren.

Scharf's History of Western Maryland (1882) at pp. 915-919 also contains a rather detailed account of Andrew Shriver, b. Sept. 6, 1712, his forebearers, his coming to America with his parents in 1721, his settlement, and the career of his son David Shriver Sr. referred to above. David Shriver married Rebecca Ferree. By this marriage there were nine children:

Elizabeth Shultz, of Baltimore, and d.
